Description:

Debbie Hommel, Session I and II "Crash Course in Activity Management"

You got a promotion – Congratulations! You are an awesome activity professional but now you have to manage others and run a department – something we are not often taught to do. This session will speed through the five functions of management – Planning, Organizing, Staffing, Supervision and Evaluating. Fasten your seatbelt and stay out of the left lane – hopefully it won't be a bumpy ride.

Chris Kelly, Session III and IV "Clearly Put - Applying health literacy to activities therapy and resident care"

Back in 2007, the CDC published landmark health literacy guidelines that drive clear communication with people who are living with challenging health conditions. These guidelines include recommendations around reading level, graphic design and writing for print and digital communications. This session will offer a summary of these validated, best practice guidelines and include an interactive discussion related to the application of these guidelines to activities therapy and resident communications.
